South Korea's three mobile carriers have begun pre-orders for "iPhone SE."

SK Telecom, KT and LG Uplus said they started pre-orders for Apple's low-end smartphone 'iPhone SE' from April 29 and release it on May 6.

The iPhone SE is Apple's first entry-level model in four years. It is equipped with the iPhone 11 series "A13 Bionic Processor." Like the iPhone 8, the front home button has been installed. It is equipped with a front 7 million pixel camera and a rear 12 million pixel camera on a 4.7-inch LCD screen.

Touch ID makes it easy and safe to unlock iPhones, use Apple Pay, and approve Apple Store purchases. iPhone SE chargers can be wirelessly charged with a Qi certification and can be charged up to 50 percent in 30 minutes with high-speed charging.

Its capacity and price are 539,000 won for 64GB, 605,000 won for 128GB and 748,000 won for 256GB, with three colors: black, white and production red.

You can pre-book the iPhone SE at SK Telecom's official agency, official online mall "T Direct Shop" and online shopping mall "11th Street."

Pre-booking for iPhone SE is also available at KT Shop, KT's official online mall. If you subscribe to a dedicated insurance product, you can use it at a cheaper price without worrying about loss or damage.

LG Uplus also receives advance reservations through its official online mall U+Shop. If you purchase the iPhone SE at U+Shop Mall, you can participate in events such as free device purchase benefits and one-year telecommunication fee support at U+Shop.
